"Antiques Roadshow" Expert Appraiser to Speak on "Discovering America's Treasures"

NEWPORT, R.I. – Lark E. Mason Jr., one of America's foremost experts on Asian art and antiquities who has appeared regularly on PBS's "Antiques Roadshow" since its inception in 1996, will share stories of how incredible works of art and craftsmanship are rediscovered and authenticated during a talk July 17 at 6 p.m. at Rosecliff.

Mason's talk, "Discovering America's Treasures," will draw on his decades of experience, including nearly 25 years a senior officer, generalist and expert in Chinese works of art with Sotheby's, New York.

"Lark Mason has a trove of great stories about antiques and artworks that lay unidentified for decades before expert eyes realized their significance," said Trudy Coxe, CEO and Executive Director of The Preservation Society of Newport County, which is presenting "Discovering America's Treasures" as part of its Summer Lecture Series. "His knowledge is incredible, and we are fortunate to have him on our Board of Trustees as well as a guest speaker this summer."

Mason was President of the Appraiser's Association of America from 2019-2021 and is founder of iGavel Auctions, an online auction platform; Lark Mason Associates, a full-service auction house; and Lark

Mason Art Advisory, art advisory and appraisals. He is the author of "Asian Art," published in 2003, and translator of Wang Shixiang's "Connoisseurship of Chinese Furniture."

Registration for the lecture at Rosecliff is available through www.newportmansions.org/events.

The Preservation Society's Summer Lecture Series, sponsored by Grande Masonry of Providence, also includes:
