“Full Circle” Exhibition Encompasses Past and Present in Contemporary Art

Legacy of “Monumenta” Examined in New Exhibition “Full Circle: Richard Fleischner with David Smith, Christo, Claes Oldenburg, Barnett Newman, & other Monumenta Artists.”

NEWPORT, R.I. – Fifty-one years after “Monumenta” transformed Newport with one of the world’s first large-scale outdoor sculpture exhibitions, “Full Circle” will revisit that groundbreaking moment through the enduring practice of artist Richard Fleischner.

The genesis of the exhibition, open February 6 through May 3 at Rosecliff, is Fleischner’s site-specific earthwork “Sod Maze” at Chateau-sur-Mer, created for “Monumenta” and still existing today. Our understanding of this work is now enriched by the recent gift of more than 20 artworks, drawings and studies related to “Sod Maze” that Fleischner has generously donated to The Preservation Society of Newport County, which owns Chateau-sur-Mer and 10 other historic properties. These newly acquired works, including original sketches, notes and archival materials, shed fresh light on the evolution of “Sod Maze” and illuminate the unifying concepts that inform Fleischner’s process.

Presented in dialogue with works by fellow “Monumenta” artists Christo, David Smith, Claes Oldenburg, Alexander Liberman and Barnett Newman, the exhibition situates Fleischner’s practice within a wider community of innovators who defined art in the landscape in the last quarter of the 20th century. “Full Circle” reunites “Monumenta” artists in Newport for the first time since 1974, juxtaposing related works with a fresh perspective.

“Full Circle” also looks forward to Fleischner’s contemporary practice, including a selection of encaustic work exhibited for the first time along with preparatory materials for Fleischner’s ongoing installation at Rowdy Meadow in Ohio. There, Fleischner’s work has truly come full circle as he is once again sited among contemporary masters including Richard Serra, Anish Kapoor and Andy Goldsworthy.

“Full Circle” follows the arc of Fleischner’s career and traces a continuous line from the pioneering vision of “Monumenta” to the lasting relevance of modern and contemporary sculpture today.

The exhibition will be included with admission to Rosecliff. See

SHORT-FORM VERSION

Legacy of “Monumenta” Examined in New Exhibition “Full Circle: Richard Fleischner with David Smith, Christo, Claes Oldenburg, Barnett Newman and other Monumenta Artists.”

Fifty-one years after “Monumenta” transformed Newport with one of the world’s first large-scale outdoor sculpture exhibitions, “Full Circle” revisits that groundbreaking moment through the work of Richard Fleischner, one of the last living participating artists, and his contemporaries.

Centered on Fleischner’s enduring site-specific “Sod Maze” at Chateau-sur-Mer, the exhibition presents original sketches, notes and archival materials that illuminate his early career alongside influential figures such as Christo, David Smith, Claes Oldenburg, Alexander Liberman and Barnett Newman. Complemented by encaustics and works related to Fleischner's ongoing Rowdy Meadow earthwork – home to contemporary masters like Richard Serra, Anish Kapoor, and Andy Goldsworthy – the exhibit traces a compelling arc from the pioneering vision of "Monumenta" to the continuing relevance of modern art and contemporary sculpture today.

On view February 6 - May 3 at Rosecliff, Newport, R.I. See
